

1066 and All That (HST 2023)

Dr Charles West, University of Sheffield

Secondary sources bibliography – updated Oct 2018

In this course you are encouraged to concentrate on the primary evidence for the Norman Conquest of England, and to make use of the extraordinarily abundant historiography only selectively (though you cannot wholly ignore it). So this bibliography focuses on directly relevant works, with a preference for recent and accessible literature. I've starred items that we'll be reading in class, and one or two other key items.

If you would like to find more material (and there is a lot more...), you can make use of the International Medieval Bibliography, run by the publisher Brepols, available online on University servers; the Royal Historical Society Bibliography, also available on the University network; or simply read through the most recent editions of Anglo-Norman Studies (942.02 (B)) or the Haskins Society Journal (PER 905 HAS). Some of the more recent volumes of the former are now available online through the STAR library catalogue; those only available in paper in Western Bank are still however worth consulting!

For primary sources, and studies of them, please see the separate primary source bibliography.

1. Introductory reading and companions

Introductory reading

- D. Bates, The Normans and Empire (Oxford, 2013). Wider Norman context.
- D. Bates, William the Conqueror (New Haven, 2016). Wide-ranging biography with lots to say about the Norman Conquest, though not always easy going.
- R. Bartlett, England under the Norman and Angevin kings, 1075–1225 (Oxford, 2002)
Good, though a bit late for our concerns.
- R.A. Brown, The Normans and the Norman Conquest, 2nd edn. (Woodbridge, 1985). A classic, but showing its age.
- M. Chibnall, Anglo-Norman England 1066–1166 (Oxford, 1986). Another classic.
- M. Chibnall, The Debate on the Norman Conquest (Manchester, 1999). A historiographical vademecum.
- J. Crick and E. van Houts, A social history of England 900-1200 (Cambridge, 2011). Perhaps the best general introduction to the period (NB – I declare an interest!), though not specifically on the Conquest.
- D. Crouch, The Normans. The History of a Dynasty (London, 2002)
- R. Fleming, Kings and Lords in Conquest England (Cambridge, 1991)
- G. Garnett, The Norman Conquest: a very short introduction (Oxford, 2009). A very short introduction; a little idiosyncratic.
- *B. Golding, Conquest and Colonization: The Normans in Britain, 1066-1100 (revised edition, 2001). Still the best guide to the Conquest itself.
- H. Harvey Wood, The Battle of Hastings: The Fall of Anglo-Saxon England (London, 2008). Popular and strongly argued, if partisan.
- L. Hicks, A Short History of the Normans (London, 2016).
- N. Higham, The death of Anglo-Saxon England (Stroud, 1997)
- D. Matthew, Britain and the Continent, 1000–1300: the impact of the Norman Conquest (London, 2005)
- *M. Morris, The Norman Conquest (London, 2013). A very readable narrative for this course.
- M. Morris, William the Conqueror (London, 2016). Essentially an abridged version of his 2013 book.
- H. Thomas, The Norman Conquest: England after William the Conqueror (Lanham, 2008)
Recent and good.
- D. Walker, The Normans in Britain (Oxford, 1995)
- A. Williams, The English and the Norman Conquest (Woodbridge, 1995). Elegiac.

Companions

- A Companion to the Anglo-Norman World*, eds. C. Harper-Bill and E. van Houts (Woodbridge, 2003)
- The Blackwell Encyclopaedia of Anglo-Saxon England* eds. M. Lapidge, J. Blair, S. Keynes and D. Scragg (Oxford, 1999)
- A Companion to the Early Middle Ages: Britain and Ireland, c.500-1100*, ed. P. Stafford (Oxford, 2009)

Collected Essays

- J. Campbell, The Anglo-Saxon State (London, 2000). Somewhat one-sided, but undeniably important.
- J.C. Holt, Colonial England (London, 1997)
- C. Hicks, ed., England in the eleventh century (Stamford, 1992)
- J. Hudson, ed., Oxford History of the Laws of England, 871-1216 (Oxford, 2012), vol II.

2. The Normans

The Normans at home

- *L. Abrams, 'Early Normandy', Anglo-Norman Studies 35 (2013), pp. 45-64. A superb article.
- D. Bates, Normandy before 1066 (London, 1983). Still the best all-rounder.
- D. C. Douglas, The Norman Achievement 1050-1100 (London, 1969)
- M. Hagger, Norman rule in Normandy, 911-1144 (Woodbridge, 2018)
- E. van Houts, The Normans in Europe (Manchester, 2000): a great sourcebook.
- C. Potts, 'Normandy 911-1144', in A Companion to the Anglo-Norman World (Woodbridge, 2003), pp. 19-42

Norman identity

- E. Albu, The Normans in their Histories: Propaganda, Myth and Subversion (Woodbridge, 2001)
- K. Cross, Heirs of the Vikings: History and Identity in Normandy and England, 950-1015 (Woodbridge, 2018)
- R.H.C. Davis, The Normans and their Myth (London, 1976). Very influential.
- S. Herrick, Imagining the sacred past: hagiography and power in early Normandy (Cambridge, Mass., 2007)
- E. Johnson, 'Origin myths and the construction of medieval identities: Norman chronicles 1000-1100', in Texts and Identities in the early Middle Ages, ed. R. Corradini et al. (Vienna, 2006), pp. 153-164
- *G.A. Loud, 'The "Gens Normannorum" - myth or reality?', Anglo-Norman Studies 4 (1982), pp. 104-116, 204-209
- F. McNair, 'The politics of being Norman in the reign of Richard the Fearless (943-996)', Early Medieval Europe 23 (2015), pp. 302-328
- L. Shopkow, History and community: Norman historical writing in the eleventh and twelfth centuries (Washington DC, 1997)

The Normans in the Mediterranean and elsewhere

- D. Bates, E. D'Angelo and E. van Houts, eds., People, Texts and Artefacts: Cultural Transmission in the Norman Worlds of the Eleventh and Twelfth Centuries (London, 2018), open access. A wide-ranging collection of essays connecting the northern and southern Norman worlds: note particular Brenner's article on medicine and Skinner's article on bodies.
- Stefan Burkhardt and Thomas Foerster, eds., Norman Tradition and Transcultural Heritage: exchange of cultures in the Norman peripheries of Medieval Europe (2013). Several interesting chapters.
- J. Drell, 'Cultural syncretism and ethnic identity: The Norman "conquest" of Southern Italy and Sicily', Journal of Medieval History 25.3 (1999), pp. 187-202 (also relevant in the above section)
- A. Jotischky and K. Stringer, eds., Norman Expansion: contrasts, connections and continuities (Farnham, 2013)
- G.A. Loud, The Age of Robert Guiscard: Southern Italy and the Norman Conquest (Harlow, 2000)
- G.A. Loud, 'Southern Italy in the Eleventh Century', in The New Cambridge Medieval History, vol. IV, ed. D. Luscombe et al. (Cambridge, 2004), part 2, pp. 94-119.

Internet resources

Very useful

<http://www.rhs.ac.uk/bibl/> - a bibliography

PASE <http://www.pase.ac.uk/> and Domesday PASE <http://domesday.pase.ac.uk> Really important databases.

In Our Time (Radio 4) has a programme on Stamford Bridge.

Useful

<http://vlib.iue.it/carrie/reference/normbib/index.htm> A bibliography of the Normans, but not of Anglo-Norman England. Useful if you really like the Normans.

<http://www.dot-domesday.me.uk/hastings.htm> Beautifully designed but basically banal.

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/british/normans/> Some good stuff on this BBC website, including the Battle of Hastings game (which Harold cannot win!)

Films

There aren't really any - but there is apparently one in the making, starring Mark Lester as Harold. You can however, if you can bear the ads, watch a semi-decent Channel 4 dramatisation from 2009 <http://www.youtube.com/show/1006?s=1> (I confess I haven't watched it all through)

Fictional Literature

There's lots of this. Here's a selection:

J. Aitchison has written a series of historical novels based on the conquest, from the perspective of a Norman knight. Particularly recommended is the most recent, The Harrowing, published in 2016.

P. Kingsnorth's The Wake, published in 2014. Longlisted for the Booker; mixed reviews (very much a Brexit book).

W. Scott, Ivanhoe (1819) is ostentatiously inaccurate but still a classic.

J. Rathbone, The Last English king (1998), with some literary pretensions, and very good reviews.

H. Muntz, The Golden Warrior (1948). According to some, one of the best historical novels ever written.

Recommended Norman Conquest Days Out in South Yorkshire

The Departmental budget can't cover field trips, but that doesn't mean you can't organise your own! Peveril Castle (in Castleton) and Conisbrough Castle are both well worth a visit, and easy to get to from Sheffield by public transport; if you have to choose, I'd recommend Peveril more highly since it's in more scenic surroundings. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Peveril_Castle
